

The 22nd conference on research in educational sciences will be held at the University of Iceland's School of Education, Stakkahlíð, on October 12th 2018.

The objective of the conference is to present and promote the latest developments in educational sciences within the University of Iceland and related institutions.

This year the conference will have over 200 lectures in 57 sessions.

Some lectures will be in English.

Each year the conference is a source of new ideas and knowledge as well as being an important venue for academic discussion.

The conference is free of charge and open for everyone to participate.